

Model Release Form

Who has rights to my images?

I give the person who took my photo _____ (“Photographer”), the right to use pictures of me (“my Images”). The Photographer may also transfer, assign or share her rights to the image with other people, licensees and successors (“Others”). These Others also have the right to use my Images.

How can they use the images?

My Images may be used or combined with other images or in modified form. My Images can be used in all forms of media (such as websites, print and video) and can be used forever, without restriction, and for all purposes.

Do I have rights to approve?

No. By accepting these terms, I give up my right to approve or inspect different versions of my Images. I also give up the right to approve or inspect writing used in connection with my Images.

Releasing Rights

I won’t hold the Photographer and Others responsible for any liabilities or demands (defined as “Claims”) that happen because of my Images. This includes claims about my standing or reputation, such as claims of defamation (damaging my reputation). I won’t hold the Photographer responsible for potential invasion of privacy, violating moral rights, issues of publicity or copyright.

I won’t hold the Photographer and Others responsible for any Claims that come from my Images being changed, distorted, blurred or used with other images – it doesn’t matter if these changes were intended or not.

Photographer Rights

The Photographer is not required to use any of the rights included in this document.

This agreement will be understood under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. This Release can be changed only if in writing and signed by the Photographer.
